

Wings In The Skies

Out at San Francisco last week what is described in typical California spirit as the world's most beautiful airport was dedicated. It is by common agreement a humdinger, sculpturally impressive, a model of efficiency in the handling of air traffic, an investment of $14 million in the main terminal building, the loading concourses and the parking areas.

The thing which caught our attention is the fact that San Francisco's new port is designed to handle 10 million passengers annually.

That is a lot of people, coming and going, so many that the repercussions inevitable in this present fierce struggle between various transportation agencies can be left only to the imagination. Directly to the south in Los Angeles at another huge airport between the hours of 5 and 8 in the evening, we saw giant planes, capable of carrying 70 passengers, put down or take off every two minutes.

This understandable growth in air travel already has left its mark upon certain well-established agencies of transportation. We were told that one of the better known steamship companies was reshaping its schedules to conform to the mounting growth of air travel. Some of the plush liners which have furnished facilities for idyllic cruises are being put in mothballs, it was said.

These next 10 years undoubtedly will provide a much clearer pattern for the transportation world than can be drawn at this time. But the opportunity to board a plane in New York City or Washington in the early afternoon and to disembark on the shores of the Pacific after the lapse of a few hours is tough competition in any man's book.

In this century of miracles, time has become the essence, it appears, and that in itself is enough to change the habits of man.

More Reservoir Capacity

For a few brief hours late last week an old, substantial and progressive Nebraska community, Fairbury, a county seat town not too far from the Kansas border, experienced that feeling of helplessness which develops when the basic essential services provided by its utilities get out of kilter. It was without water and light because a lightning bolt put the city plant temporarily out of business.

Fortunately, the break was not irrevocable. Repairs did not require any great amount of time, and the plant was back in working order shortly.

In connection with Lincoln's program looking to a greatly expanded water supply for this community, this paper has called attention to what, it seems to it, is the need for greatly increased storage capacity through reservoirs. Lincoln goes a considerable distance for its water supply. Its chief dependence is placed on the water-bearing sands of the Platte River at Ashland.

clution that the possibility of something going wrong with the pipeline leading from Ashland to Lincoln is so remote that it can be brushed aside.

We know the feeling expressed by the engineers frequently that it is cheaper to provide adequate pumping facilities for daily supply than it is to go to the expense of constructing elaborate reservoirs. But with Lincoln growing as rapidly as it is—with some doubt as to whether the planned expansion representing only the first step in a water program—again the question arises about adequate reservoir facilities.

Even at the risk of a greater initial expenditure, storage capacity capable of carrying this community through a two- or three-day emergency on the basis of limited use might prove to be one of the best investments Lincoln ever made.

Until work started on the expanded program, we relied upon one pipeline. Now a second is being built, double the capacity of the original pipeline, and when completed, apparently it will be adequate to provide a growing city with abundant water, all the water it needs without its people being compelled to restrict the uses. In normal circumstances, a pipeline break is not to be anticipated. Chances of such a development can be brushed aside roughly as one in a million. Perhaps even that is on the side of caution. Yet there is always the possibility of trouble developing in the pipeline, trouble so as to interfere seriously with the growing daily requirements for water which this community reflects.

We assume that the city hall has given thought to this. Apparently it has reached the conclusion that the possibility of something going wrong with the pipeline leading from Ashland to Lincoln is so remote that it can be brushed aside.

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

More than 50,000 Nebraskans, so the news columns revealed late last week, visited the Centennial Car exhibits arranged by the Nebraska Centennial Commission, the Historical Society, and five Nebraska railroads. The car was filled with displays undertaking to set forth a hundred years of progress since the establishment of Nebraska territory.

It is a rather handsome tribute to the people of Nebraska. The state's population at this time is slightly in excess of one and a quarter million men, women and children. The exhibits completed in early June, then placed in the car, began their visits to numerous towns and cities.

Eliminating Omaha and Lincoln (combined population in excess of 350,000), the car drew about one out of every 20. And during the month of July, Nebraska was sweltering in about the most punishing heat wave it has experienced in more than a decade. But it was not an uncommon occurrence in many of these communities for from four to five hundred up to as many as a thousand people to take time out and to expend the energy in order to view displays depicting a hundred years of development. It is a healthy, wholesome sign particularly since among the thousands of visitors were great numbers of youngsters, desirous of knowing Nebraska better.

At the same time two of the older communities—Nebraska City and Omaha, each observing a 100th birthday—staged elaborate, costly pageants. More than 8,000 Omaha citizens attended the first night's production. At Nebraska City throughout a week there was an amazing average turnout of about 2,000 persons. That, in itself, suggests that the centennial served its purpose.

There is something sad, something nostalgic about the passing of the Mighty Mo. It is taking so much of the old America with it. Yet it is leaving so many of us behind who cannot go into mothballs, but must face a new world that is too mysterious and too dangerous to be defended by a battleship, in fact or in mentality.

For the second time this year the Federal Reserve Board has reduced the reserve requirements of its member banks. To the initiated a reduction in reserve requirements is a way of loosening credit because it hands back to the banks a piece of lending capital which it is to their best interests to put to work by encouraging borrowing. The board has indicated that the reserve reduction is timely since the government itself will soon be needing to borrow $10 billion which, if there is not plenty of credit, might pinch the private loan market which is said presently to be strong.

Federal Reserve maneuvers of this kind constitute a form of money management, but the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which believes such management is indispensable and approves of it thoroughly could not resist reminding the Eisenhower administration and especially Secretary of Treasury Humphrey that he is resolutely on record favoring the government's abdication from money management declaring that "money is a commodity just like anything else," and should be allowed to seek its own level.

Nebraska will be a much better state when its people know more about themselves—the stories of the early settlements—the sources of its economic strength—the rise and then the failure of undertakings, particularly in the field of industry. We were busy with settlement until after the close of the past century. One very important section of Nebraska, where perhaps progress has been greatest, did not get going until after 1910. Our greatest achievements have been written in the past 20 years. Among them are the unfinished construction of an acceptable modern highway system, the advent of rural electrification, which has seen more than 80 per cent of Nebraska's farm homes endowed with the advantages of electricity, and the revolution in farming methods which has given this state, thanks to better seed, better equipment, and sound soil conservation practices, a much surdier and a much more stable agriculture.

The only thing it seems the Communists have that we don't have is the secret of underproducing food. This capitalist country is dogged by plenty which is especially grievous Agriculture Secretary Benson. But we learn that right while we are steadily losing ground against surpluses, the Russians have the matter nicely in hand. They not only have achieved underproduction this year but may even have done so well at it that they can enjoy a nice cozy little national famine as a sort of bonus.

We all will be better off, and we will find it possible to develop a greater spirit of unity in matters where unity is so important, when there is a wider understanding of why and how this happened, and, finally, the results of these milestones which appear not infrequently in the course of Nebraska development. Any Nebraskan can subject himself to a simple test. We have a public power program. How did it come about? We have man-made lakes where there were none. How did they come into being and have they been helpful? A series of simple questions dealing with basic developments in Nebraska would do much to clear the atmosphere of confusion and misunderstanding.

But it will be increasingly difficult to maintain such a position if France must use more and more force to hold Morocco in check. That is the American dilemma.

Merman-Monroe Duo Give The Answers

Men never have business conferences on nights their wives give dinner parties.

Political and business talk be banned at dinner tables.

Men wear blinders at the beach.

Morning papers be delivered after breakfast, so hubby can feed his face and wife could see it before he buries it in the news.

Says Marilyn Monroe: From time to time, I've been quoted in the entertainment columns of newspapers, and even in news stories, but this is the first time I've been invited to contribute to a column which deals with national affairs on a high level.

Nearest I've come to affecting the national establishment was when a war department representative, through a comedy of errors, ordered killed a picture of me taken with some service girls in Atlantic City, but the newspapers ran the picture anyway and a truce was arranged.

lemma, with the realization always in the background of what the bases mean to the security of the West.

As part of the retaliatory strike of the Strategic Air Command they are aimed at Russia's oil fields and oil production centers. Until the recent troubles developed they were considered more secure than any bases in Europe and they constituted, therefore, a second line of defense. The bases which may be built in Spain as a result of the agreement of some months ago supplement but do not supplant the Moroccan bases.

Nominally, under the tentative agreement, the French are in command of these bases and the tricolor flies alongside the Stars and Stripes. They are responsible for external security around the bases and, in theory, when they are ready they will take over the air defense.

MARQUIS CHILDS

U.S. Airbase Need Is French Weapon

PARIS — American dependence on France in the defense of the West is even more evident in French Morocco than it is here in metropolitan France. In that strategic area where the United States has invested more than five hundred millions for essential air bases the French exercise tight control over the whole American operation.

This presents both airmen and diplomats with some acute problems, particularly as tensions have grown between the Arabs and French. The French are fearful that the American operation will become so big that they will be overshadowed and thereby their hold on the Arab population will be further weakened. One result of this fear is a ceiling imposed by France on the number of planes and men allowed to operate from these bases.

This ceiling is a serious handicap in the operation of the three bases in French Morocco—Sidi Slimane, Nouasseur, and Ben Guerir—now functioning. When a fourth base, Boulhaut, is completed next April it will not be able to operate if the present ceiling of 7,400 men is still in force.

There is a larger concern in this matter of the relationship among Americans, Arabs and French. That is the effect it has on the American position in the Middle East. American bases just as vital in the security picture are in Libya and Saudi Arabia where the consciousness of Arab nationalism and Arab independence is at least as great as in French Morocco.

The turmoil in the Moslem world is reflected in the violent broadcasts directed against the French by Radio Cairo, Radio Karachi and Radio Jakarta. The French protectorate in Morocco is the No. 1 target of propaganda calling for vengeance and blood to be shed for blood. In this angry chorus the Communist voice from Radio Budapest is hardly more than an echo.

But, if in the present crisis over EDC, Franco-American relations are upset, then this agreement may once again be sidetracked. If the process of agonizing reappraisal comes down to reprisals taken back and forth across the Atlantic, the French could be even more restrictive about the Moroccan bases. That is one reason why such an eventuality must be avoided, despite the deep sense of frustration American officials feel at French delay of any decision on the "German problem."

American relations with the Arab world are directly involved and this will come to the fore when the question of independence for Morocco is pressed before the United Nations in September. In the past the United States has worked with France to keep this out of the U.N. assembly. Publicly the American position has been one of neutrality.

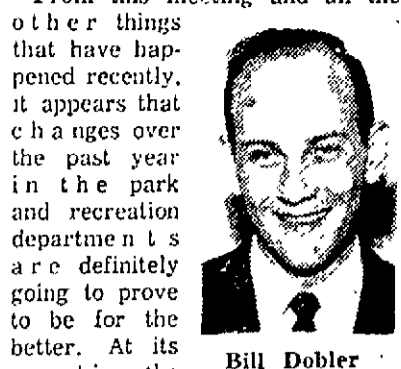

The Arabs are closely watching what America does in Morocco and, therefore, it becomes more and more difficult to maintain a neutral position. Yet, if, for example, the United States should side with the Arab countries at the U.N. over the Moroccan issue, the French would be almost sure to tighten up on American base operations.

That is why in the view of Ambassador Dillon and responsible officials here it is important to conclude the status-of-forces agreement as quickly as possible. This may turn on whether the French are able to come up with proposals for political reforms in Morocco similar to those made for Tunisia. If such proposals were made prior to the U.N. session, tensions would be eased and a showdown between French and Arabs might be averted. While that is the earnest hope, the fear is that it will be lost with so much else in the angry uproar over EDC and the threat to the very existence of the Western alliance.

BILL DOBLER At City Hall.

Rogers Tract Recreation Center

Bill Dobler

There was a spirit of real determination at a meeting during the week of the joint parks and recreation board.

From this meeting and all the other things that have happened recently, it appears that changes over the past year in the park and recreation department are definitely going to prove to be for the better. At its meeting, the joint board didn't hesitate a minute in recommending the construction of a high school stadium on the Rogers Tract at 33rd and O.

In view of the criticism that might follow, this was not an easy thing to do. Previous attempts to get things going in a stadium at 33rd and O have met with one delay after another. Some of these delays have been due to legal problems and some of them due to objections of property owners living near the area.

While the legal problems can be solved, a solution to the other problem depends entirely upon the people concerned. Lincoln is greatly in need of additional recreational facilities and the Rogers Tract is an ideal location for such a recreation center.

A spirit of co-operation on the part of property owners near 33rd and O would probably do more to help things along than any other single thing. This, of course, is going to require a real job of salesmanship but it might not be impossible.

First of all, the people in that area should be given an opportunity to get all the facts on what is planned for the tract in question. A stadium is not the only thing in mind.

As a matter of fact, the stadium might even be considered secondary except for its cost. Many of the other facilities planned for the area will be more generally used and more often in use.

The completed product at Rogers would include tennis courts, ice skating, baseball diamond, roller skating, picnic area, possibly a swimming pool and other games and activities. The finished product also calls for extensive landscaping around the entire area.

All in all, the Rogers tract could well become one of the finest recreational centers in Lincoln. It does not necessarily follow that this would depreciate property values in the area.

Lincoln builders are more and more beginning to see the value of placing a park and recreation center in the middle of their housing developments. Surely if such centers hurt a development, the builders would want no part of them.

For families with children, the advantages of living near such centers are evident. For those families without children, the advantages are fewer but the disadvantages are not as big as they might seem to be.

Such public centers are operated only during the day and early evening hours. The city's parks are as quiet after 10 p.m. as any other spot in the city.

Not only that but a properly planned and developed park and recreation center is extremely attractive. What better scenery could there be than well-trimmed trees and fertile green lawns?

It is not hard to understand how people living near the Rogers Tract could object to the stadium or other recreational developments. On the other hand, those objections would probably be fewer and less boisterous if the entire plan for development of the tract could be presented to those property owners and the operation of the area explained.

Members of the parks and recreation board sub-committee, on development of the Rogers Tract could perform a real service if they took it upon themselves not only to plan the development but seek to sell it to the parties most interested. The entire project would certainly be more successful from every angle if it received the endorsement of a majority of those persons living in the immediate area of 33rd and O.

With the Lincoln Air Force Base gradually building up to full strength, the need for such a facility was never greater. Lincoln invited, and even battled for the base to be located here. While there may have been some dissension to this, that is now past; the base is here and the men are with it so Lincoln has a job to do in providing recreational outlets for these men and others in the community.

Directly responsible for a number of major developments to further her first two causes, Mrs. Orme also has always shown a careful regard for tax money. Public acceptance of her work was shown twice with re-election to the Council—re-election in 1953 when other incumbents were defeated and re-election in 1949 with the highest number of votes polled by any candidate.

Juarez is filled with Indian-girls, passing out leaflets and pushing the town-bound tourists toward the shop.

The other evening, I had cocktails at the Monte Casino with Mr. Francisco Gutierrez, the manager, and Mr. Pepe Romero, the columnist.

I suggested that maybe the tourist bureau ought to clean this up a little. But both Romero and Gutierrez said it was impossible.

"What you don't understand, amigo," said Pepe, "is there is so much poverty in Mexico. If these kids can make a peso by pushing the tourists, the government cannot tell them to go get other jobs. This is the way they make a living."

So it could be I am wrong. But I liked it better before.

The tourist ladies en route to breakfast in Sanborn's would stop and squeal and pat the puppies. The Indian never hustled anybody. He didn't have to. He just stood there in his faded serape and let the puppies sell themselves.

When the puppies were gone, heaven provided him with another load of merchandise. The sun is warmer in narrow Madero than it is where Juarez opens to the Mexican winds. The churchyard was sheltered and you could eat lunch and take a siesta under the pepper trees.

Those puppies were the cutest in Mexico. They had black or brown spotted eyes that gave them a comical look.

They grew up into the worst looking dogs I have ever laid eyes on. I don't know what went into them but they certainly came from a careless family.

No Trespassing

Raymond, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I should like to answer Mrs. B., who in The Star Thursday, Aug. 26, asks:

"Why are the farmers so bitter about having crows and jack rabbits destroyed on their farms?" Mrs. B. complains the farmers "get het up and don't want hunters on their premises." She claims there is "nothing unlawful done" by the hunters and says she would be willing to "let the crows even eat the farmers, if it were possible!"

I would like to inform her that when hunters disregard "No Trespassing" signs and go in to hunt on a farmer's premises without his consent, there certainly is something unlawful being done by the hunter who persists in doing as he pleases. No citizen should trespass on another man's domain when forbidden to do so. It seems to me. How would she like it if farmers with .22 rifles in their hands were to invade her yard in town and start shooting right and left at the birds, squirrels, dogs, and cats in her yard? Would she still think "nothing unlawful" was being done?

I don't blame farmers for posting "No Trespassing" and "No Hunting" signs. They are within their rights in trying to protect their own property. We lost a good horse one time when some hunter with a .22 rifle mistook him for a crow or a jack rabbit. We also lost a dog in the same way. Another time a hog came up missing. And on one occasion I saw a hunter deliberately shoot one of our young pullets that was out in the road, and after he shot it he got out of his car, picked up the pullet, flung it into the car and drove on. He probably bragged afterward about having a "Plymouth Rock jack rabbit" for supper!

"Do unto others as you would like to have others do unto you" still is a wise policy.

Old Fairbury Tradition

4,000 Attend Band Festival

Lincoln Star Special
FAIRBURY, Neb.—Bands from 12 towns with a combined membership of more than 500 musicians helped to carry on an old Fairbury tradition Sunday with the presentation of the 20th annual band festival.

Approximately 4,000 people attended the two concerts Sunday. Climax of the day's activities was the massed band concert at the city auditorium Sunday evening.

Band directors from the 12 towns took their turn at the podium directing the combined musical force in concert selections.

During the afternoon, nine bands and the combined Alexandria, Odell, and Munden, Kan., band appeared separately in half-hour hour programs in the city park.

Special numbers at the evening concert included cornet trios from the participating bands playing in unison; tenor solos by Al Hartley; and vocal selections sung by the Fairbury Kiwanis Club quartet, composed of Jack Henney, Dr. W. P. Yoachim, Vincent Nelson, and Dale Gates.

Harold L. Chatelain, director of the Fairbury Band, and Fairbury band members were hosts to the visiting bands. Max Denney, H. C. Aker, and Cecil Gates were masters of ceremonies during the afternoon concerts.

Chatelain directed the Fairbury band portion of the program and also the Alexandria, Odell, and Munden combined band.

Two of the towns—Beatrice and Marysville, Kan.—have missed only one festival in the 22 years since the affair was inaugurated. Fairbury has never missed having a band in attendance at the festival.

The festival was first held in 1932. The festival was not held for two years during World War II. Bands and their directors here Sunday included the following:

Beatrice, Louis Buekel, Gustafson, Central Standard, Geneva, Herman L. Larsen, Hedron, J. P. Hinds, Mendenhall, E. B. Moses Jr., Red Cloud, D. J. Branch, Washington, Kan., Charles Branch, Willmar, Elmer A. Javorsky.

Laymen Told Severity Of Refugees Problem

Lincoln Star Special
CRETE, Neb.—The increasing need for improving the lot of European refugees was stressed at the seventh annual meeting of the Nebraska Congregational Laymen's Fellowship which ended Sunday.

Walter Graham of Pembroke, Ky., executive secretary of the fellowship, told the members that between 32,000,000 and 35,000,000 refugees are living under poor and often impoverished conditions today. The number of families which are poorly housed and clothed is increasing, he said, and many have lost all hope.

This problem is met by the churches, which, he said, have done all that is possible. The work is being assisted by a Ford Foundation grant of $2,900,000.

John Bender of Weeping Water was elected president at the Sunday session. He succeeds Ward Sheppard of Ralston. Ira Wilcox

Soggy Weather Balks Air Tour

Lincoln Star Special
TALMAGE, Neb. — The Otoe County Soil Conservation Association has been unsuccessful in two attempts to take Otoe County farmers for a day of airplane rides over their own farms and points of conservation interest.

The air strip south of Syracuse where the planes were to take off has remained too wet because of heavy recent rain to permit operation of the planes. Another attempt at the tours will be made sometime after the state fair.

The purpose of the air tours is to stimulate interest in soil conservation practices.

Time Running Out For Wheat Tests

Farmers planning on taking soil samples to determine fertilizer needs for wheat acreage should do so in the next few days, according to Delno Knudsen of the Soil Testing Service, University of Nebraska.

He reminded farmers that there are only a few days left in which to submit soil samples to the Laboratory if they expect to have the results of the tests back before wheat planting time.

Farmers have a similar deadline to meet on making lime tests to determine lime needs, he pointed out. If legumes are to be sown in the wheat next spring, a lime test should be made and the lime worked into the soil ahead of the wheat seeding.

From the standpoint of cost, farmers also should anticipate their soil testing needs, Knudsen said. On Nov. 1, the cost per sample will be raised from $1.00 to $1.50. This increase is partially due to higher cost of labor and material used in making the tests. Also a lime requirement test has been added to the general tests. This in addition to the pH test previously made to determine the acidity of the soil. The new test, lime requirement, tells how much lime should be applied to correct this acidity.

Conservationist H. Hubers Resigns

KEARNEY, Neb.—Henry J. Hubers, work unit conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, has resigned to take a position in California.

Hubers was also associated with the Buffalo-Ravenna Soil Conservation District. He graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1931, and started conservation work in 1934 with the Soil Erosion Service at Albion.

Butler Well Drilling Booms

Lincoln Star Special
DAVID CITY, Neb.—A total of 14 new irrigation wells which can irrigate about 1,700 acres of land have been drilled and installed in Butler County during the last year.

According to Vincent Jacobson, unit conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service here, this is the largest number of wells installed in one year since the county SCS was organized about nine years ago.

In addition to this, at least a dozen more farmers and landowners are planning to install well irrigation systems in the coming year. At the present time there are about 50 irrigation systems in Butler County. These wells are capable of irrigating about 5,000 acres of farmland.

Of the 365,000 acres in the county, only about 23,000 acres can be developed profitably for irrigation, Jacobson said.

Rural Church Is Dedicated Near Johnson

Lincoln Star Special
JOHNSON, Neb. — More than 1,800 persons attended dedication services near here Sunday for the new Martin Luther Church structure.

The rural church, located about 13 miles southeast of Tecumseh, has a congregation numbering 350. The new building of brick veneer replaces a 35-year-old frame structure. It has a seating capacity of 585 and the worship area is 84 by 48 feet. The bell tower is of native limestone. Although the church is valued at $90,000, volunteer labor on the part of church members lowered the actual construction cost to $65,000.

Participating in the dedicatory services were two brothers and the son, all pastors, of Martin Luther pastor, the Rev. William Frueling. The Rev. Frueling has served as pastor at Martin Luther for the past 43 years.

Repeat Performance Forecast

Most of the nation can expect fair weather Monday except for cloudy skies along the south Atlantic coastal sections. South Carolina can expect squalls along the coast with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms over south Atlantic states, Gulf coast states and in the northern Plains. It will be slightly warmer over northern Plains and the Lakes region and somewhat cooler over middle Mississippi valley and the south Atlantic states. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

Lincoln Star Special
DAVID CITY, Neb.—The new $200,000 St. Mary High School here was dedicated Sunday afternoon by Bishop Louis B. Kucera of Lincoln.

At the same time Bishop Kucera blessed the convent building which has just been acquired for nuns who teach in the parish, and a newly-built rectory. The total cost of the improvements represents a sum of $303,000.

The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Rev. Anthony Egging, superintendent of schools for the Diocese of Grand Island. Msgr. F. J. Kopecky was celebrant at the benediction. Rev. Alphonse J. Kosko is pastor of the parish.

The new high school is a one-story, buff brick structure of modern design. Windows extend almost the entire length of the building. It will have an initial enrollment of 70 ninth and 10th grade students, with the remaining two grades to be added in the near future.

The rectory is a two-story building, also of brick. It will provide quarters for the pastor and two assistant pastors.

Democrats Promise Farmers They Will Work For Return Of Rigid Price Props

... Democrats Launch Midwest Drive

SIoux FALLS, S. D. (U)—Democrats seeking seats in the next Congress from 15 Midwest states Sunday promised farmers they would work for re-establishment of high, rigid price supports kicked out by the Eisenhower administration.

This pledge was made in a joint statement issued by the more than three dozen nominees for the Senate and the House at the close of a farm conference launching the party's drive for the Midwest agricultural vote in the coming election.

But they did not have the solid backing of Adlai Stevenson, the party's titular leader.

In a speech Saturday night climaxing the conference, the 1952 presidential nominee denounced President Eisenhower for a "cynical and total breach of promise" to farmers in obtaining enactment of a new farm law featuring flexible price floors. Under this law price guarantees are high in times of shortages to encourage production and low in times of surpluses to discourage overproduction.

But Stevenson said, in effect, he did not know what the permanent solution might be for keeping farmers prosperous. He said he would have kept the war-born high supports "at this time" as a stabilizing influence.

"Perhaps the solution does not lie in just the alternatives of the so-called flexible supports demanded by the administration and the 90 per cent supports," he said.

The present supports, which expire at the end of this year, are at 90 per cent of parity for major crops. Under the administration's new law, they may range between 82.5 and 90 per cent of parity in 1955 and from 75 to 90 thereafter.

Parity is a price declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they must pay.

Most of the party leaders participating in the conference said they were convinced that 90 per cent supports were the answer.

Shivers Happy About Triumph

Shivers, An Ike Demo, Rides To Record Win

... 'Texas Interests First'—Governor

DALLAS, TEX. (U)—Texas' Gov. Allen Shivers, victorious in his fight for an unprecedented third term, said Texas would be predominantly a Democratic state for a long time, but Texans always would put Texas first.

The governor is an Eisenhower Democrat. His victory in Saturday's runoff primary put conservative Democrats in firm control in the state.

Latest returns showed Shivers with more than a 93,000-vote margin of victory over Austin Atty. Ralph Yarborough, who carried the liberal banner and stressed party loyalty.

Shivers received a telephone call from President Eisenhower, in Denver, but did not disclose what was said.

'Highly Pleased' In Denver, the President relayed to newsmen that he was "highly pleased" by Shivers' victory because "the President has long admired Gov. Shivers as a public servant."

At Magnolia Hills, his farm home near Woodville in southeast Texas, Shivers said, "The victory is a decision of the voters of Texas to put Texas and the interests of Texas first. Texas is and will be for a long time a predominantly Democratic state."

In Washington, Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman, commented he didn't think Shivers' victory "indicates anything about Eisenhower."

Mitchell said on the NBC TV-radio show "Meet the Press" that he didn't consider the election an indication of any national trend but only "that the Republican party doesn't amount to anything in Texas." He added that the Republicans were talking a lot about their hopes in 1952.

An estimated 1,450,000 votes were cast—biggest turnout in any Texas primary so far.

The unofficial returns also showed that Texans elected Few Brewster, the incumbent, as an associate justice on the State Supreme Court and chose former Mayor Wallace Savage of Dallas

GOP Draws Up Campaign For Rural Vote

By DON WHITEHEAD

CINCINNATI (U)—Republican campaign strategy to tighten the GOP grip on Congress in November is taking shape along these lines: "run scared and convince the farmers they never had it so good."

This became evident as party leaders moved into town for a three-day "shirtless workshop" meeting with a show of confidence that a peace - and - prosperity theme will swing the elections in favor of the Republicans.

President Eisenhower gave the meeting a boost with greetings from his vacation headquarters in Denver and this message:

"Your workmanlike, determined, earnest approach to the crucial struggle before us is tremendously heartening to me and I am sure to all loyal Republicans everywhere."

"I have the fullest confidence that if your gathering there can find its counterpart among the thousands of other devoted party workers and leaders throughout the land, then their combined efforts this fall to continue to strengthen America at home and abroad will surely be crowned by overwhelming success."

It appeared that the Republicans will strive to center the main campaign emphasis on the Eisenhower record. Indications were the Communists-in-government and McCarthyism issues already have been shoved into the background in favor of arguments spotlighting the nation's peacetime prosperity, the Eisenhower leadership, and the record of the 83rd Congress.

GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall predicted the Republicans "will pick up 15 to 25 House seats" and on a percentage basis will do even better in the Senate.

New Traffic Signs Installed—Signs instructing drivers to yield the right of way have been installed on 18th Street where it is intersected by G Street and M Street. The signs, first used here about three years ago, are designed to slow traffic entering open intersections without penalizing drivers by directing them to make a complete stop. They are used only at intersections where there has been high accident experience and have produced more than a 50 per cent reduction of accidents.

Brooklyn Gains Game On Giants

Bums Sweep Twin Bill From Braves; Cards, New York Split

MILWAUKEE (U)—The Brooklyn Dodgers zoomed to within 1½ games of the National League lead Sunday, whipping the Milwaukee Braves 12-4 after an eight-run explosion in the 11th inning of the first game and completing the rout with an 11-4 decision in the second game of a doubleheader.

The two triumphs, making six in a row for the Dodgers, enabled them to cut one full game from the league-leading New York Giants' margin and shoved the Braves 7½ games off the pace, New York split with St. Louis, losing the opener 5-4, in 11 innings, winning the nightcap 7-4.

Skogman Is 17th NWU Grid Coach

Kieth Skogman, the young ex-Dana College mentor who officially took over the Nebraska Wesleyan University football coaching job when fall drills opened this week, becomes the 17th Plainsman gridiron mentor in a long history dating back to 1898.

Actually there have been 17 distinct coaching tenures on the Plainsman campus, for George Farley, Cornhusker grid great of the late 20's, handled the Methuists during the 1935 and 1936 seasons, then returned for a second two year hitch from 1941 to 1942.

A check of the coaching records discloses that the 16 Plainsman tutors have had better than average luck in disposing of foes. In 368 games played, Wesleyan teams have won 182, lost 150 and tied 35 for a .545 percentage.

Ben Beck who served but a single year in 1919, boasts the best percentage record—a .777 mark compiled with seven wins in nine starts.

George (Bus) Knight, another Nebraska University standout of the Rosebowl era, turned in a .702 record over a four year span from 1946 to 1949, a record which included 24 wins, 9 losses and four ties.

Skogman, who too had better than average luck while pitting his Dana Vikings against larger schools, is a product of Gustavus Adolphus College in Minnesota where he was an all-conference line-man four consecutive years.

LATE AUGUST SINGS A Bridal Song

MRS. MERRILL R. TALPERS

Miss Sondra Bricker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hymen G. Bricker, became the bride of Merrill R. Talpers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Talpers of Denver, Colo., on Sunday evening, Aug. 29. Clusters of lighted white candles and arrangements of gladioli and chrysanthemums in white, pink and blue tints were placed against a screen of woodwardia to form the background for the 7:30 o'clock service in the Georgian room of the Hotel Cornhusker.

Rabbi Harold Stern, assisted by the Rev. Hyman Siskin, read the lines of the ceremony beneath a draped canopy of white satin, caught with nosegays of white blossoms and topped by a white Star of David. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Leonard Bush, pianist, who also accompanied Mrs. Joel Markell, the vocal soloist.

As her sister's matron of honor, Mrs. Floyd Kuklin appeared in a waltz-length frock of white lace over taffeta. The strapless bodice was veiled by a stole of white tulle, and the princess lines of her costume were emphasized by narrow, vertical cordings of pink satin. She wore a head bandeau of white tulle and carried a muf of tulle and feathered carnations tied with pink satin. Wearing identical ensembles banded with pale blue satin were Mrs. Milton Lipsman of Davenport, Ia., who was her sister's bridesmatron, and Miss Beverly Wilson, the bridesmaid.

The bride chose imported white silk taffeta for her gown designed in the 18th century mode. Rosepoint lace, embroidered with pearls and opalescent sequins, touched the bare-shoulder neckline of the molded bodice, and the shirred sleeves were completed by mits of the taffeta. Caught into softly draped puffs, the extremely full skirt was worn over hoops and extended into a train, and her French illusion veil was held by a crown of the lace, dotted with pearls. She carried a white prayer book marked with a white orchid and showered with stephanotis.

Serving as best man was Arthur Friedman of Denver, and seating the guests were Bruce Katchen and Wes Miller, Denver. Nick Siegel of Denver, and Marshall Kushner lighted the candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Talpers will reside at Boulder, Colo., where the bridegroom is attending the University of Colorado College of Law. He is a member of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity. Mrs. Talpers is a former student at the University of Colorado.

MRS. LYLE HAMILTON

For her marriage to Lyle Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton of Franklin which was solemnized in Memorial Chapel at St. Paul Methodist church on Sunday afternoon, Miss Dorothy Sears of Seward, daughter of L. A. Sears of Valentine, wore a gown of white satin. The lace-sleeved bodice was patterned with pearl and sequin embroidered lace that elaborated the sweetheart neckline and descended in a V to the tip of the elongated waist. The softly gathered satin skirt was completed with a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a satin half-hat dotted with pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids surrounded with white Frenched carnations. Her only ornament was a pearl choker, a gift from the bridegroom.

The 4 o'clock service was solemnized by the Rev. F. C. Friedrich, assisted by the Rev. F. C. Kattner, and the wedding music was played by Houghton Furr, organist. Mr. Furr also accompanied Miss Helen Jean Utterbach of Shenandoah, Ia., who sang.

The coral-toned frock of the maid of honor, Miss Charlotte Sears, sister of the bride; and the green frocks of the bridesmaids, Miss Colleen Sears, also a sister of the bride, and Miss Lucille Sloop of Seward, were identically styled and were fashioned of satinique and net over taffeta. Net fishcush trimmed the strapless bodices, worn under satin shrug jackets, and the floor-length skirts were multi-tiered. The maid of honor carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli centered with coral, and the bridesmaids' bouquets were of coral gladioli.

Phillip Shade of Franklin served Mr. Hamilton as best man, and the ushers were Dean Richardson, Riverton, and Gillys Feis of Denver. Max Blank was the ringbearer.

A reception for the 200 wedding guests was held in the church parlors, after which Mr. Hamilton and his bride left for a Colorado honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in Lincoln, and will be at home at 1029 R St. Both Mr. Hamilton and his bride are seniors at the University of Nebraska where the bride is a member of Kappa Phi, of which she served as president, and Mortar Board. Mr. Hamilton is a member of Sigma Theta Epsilon.

MRS. JAMES C. TIERNAN

White gladioli and greenery formed the background for the wedding of Miss Marilyn Ellen Carlson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Carlson, and James C. Tiernan, son of Mrs. Benjamin Cooley of Long Beach, Calif., which took place at a 3 o'clock ceremony at the First Covenant Church on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 29. One hundred and seventy-five guests were present for the reading of the lines by the Rev. G. F. Forsberg, uncle of the bride, and the wedding music was played by Miss Hannah Jean Simonson, organist. Miss Simonson also accompanied the vocalist, Mrs. Robert Fletcher.

Waltz-length frocks were worn by the attendants, including Miss Lucille Carlson, who was her sister's maid of honor; Miss Marilyn Johnson, Miss Carolyn Cameron, both of Wahoo; and Miss Bonnie Johnson of Ceresco, the bridesmaids. Diagonal bands of pleating framed the deep V necklines of the fitted bodices which were finished with taffeta cummerbunds caught into side bows. Their frock-toned bandeaux held in place brief veils, and they carried bouquets of pink and white gladioli. Marilyn Tebo was her cousin's flower girl, and Steven Carlson, a nephew, carried the ring.

Robert Turner served Mr. Tiernan as best man, and seating the guests were Mark Seamark, Carl Glen and Joseph Koch. Chantilly lace and tulle were chosen by the bride for her gown. The long-sleeved bodice was fashioned with a tulle yoke framed with lace scallops, and over the wide tulle skirt, which was finished with a cathedral train, was a peplum of the lace. Her double-tiered veil of illusion was held to the head with a lace cap ornamented with pearls and iridescent sequins, and she carried a spray of Frenched white carnations and tufts of tulle centered with a white orchid. Immediately following the ceremony a reception for the wedding guests was held in the church parlors.

The oval neckline of the long-sleeved fitted bodice, which was completed with a pleated tulle cummerbund, was outlined with seed pearls, and then sweeping skirt of lace was given added fullness by a waist-to-hem front panel of tulle. Her veil of illusion was held to the head with a calot sprinkled with seed pearls, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white cymbidium orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Ryan is a former student at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. The bridegroom, a senior in the College of Business Administration at the University of Nebraska, is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Afternoon Wedding

MRS. DOYLE BLODGETT

At a late afternoon ceremony on Sunday, Aug. 29, Miss Carole Alice Pietsenpol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Pietsenpol, became the bride of Doyle I. Blodgett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence I. Blodgett. The lines of the candlelight service were read by the Rev. Vance Rogers in the presence of 200 guests.

Miss Janice Pietsenpol, as her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Theba Blodgett, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Delores Mills, wore alike frocks of white lace and net and carried bouquets of autumn-toned blossoms. Wearing yellow net was the flower girl, Miss Sandra Johnston, and lighting the candles were Miss Beth Pietsenpol and Miss Donna

Blodgett, also sisters of the bride and of the bridegroom.

The bride appeared in a gown of white imported lace over satin and tulle. The long-sleeved bodice was designed with a yoke of sheer illusion, accented by appliques of the lace at the throatline, and the fully-gathered skirt was fashioned with a back panel of tiered lace and pleated nylon which extended into a train. A small crown of pleated lace held her illusion veil, and she carried a white prayer book marked with a white orchid and showered with stephanotis.

Robert Pietsenpol, brother of the bride, served as best man, and the ushers were Carroll Johnston, Central City, Al Priest, Dwight Lubken and Leslie Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Blodgett will live in Lincoln upon their return from a wedding trip to Colorado.
